INTRODUCTION

This paper reports on the Ministry of Labour's seventh annual survey of collective agreement expirations in Ontario. The purpose of the survey is to indicate how much contract renewal bargaining can be expected in Ontario during 1974 and where it will occur.[1]

The data used to describe the 1974 bargaining situation are numbers of collective agreements terminating during the year and numbers of employees covered by them. This information was drawn from the Ministry's Collective Agreements Library and was current as of November 19, 1973. The data should identify more than 80 per cent of the 1974 bargaining situations. They do not include recent and future certifications by the Ontario Labour Relations Board and a few expiring agreements that were not yet signed when the data were compiled.

Overview

Altogether, 2,636 Ontario collective agreements are scheduled to expire during 1974. This is 43 per cent of the 6,200 current agreements held by the Library. The expiring agreements cover 341,000 workers, more than 35 per cent of the 961,000 employees in Ontario working under union contracts.

Although the number of collective agreements that will expire in 1974 will be almost the same as in 1973, approximately 100,000 fewer workers will be bargaining. In the earlier year 2,696 contracts were open compared to 2,636 for 1974. In terms of employees affected, the numbers are respectively 440,000 and 341,000. This sharp reduction in

1. In earlier editions of this study all expiring contracts were listed by industry and month of expiration. These lists now identify by name only individual agreements covering 200 or more workers. The number of agreements covering fewer than 200 workers is aggregated for each industry and month. In addition, certain tables showing expiring agreements by union, economic region and urban centre have been deleted. The detail given in previous reports and not appearing in the 1974 edition can be obtained from the Research Branch of the Ministry of Labour.

employees participating in bargaining in 1974 as compared to the previous year results from the fact that almost none of the very large bargaining units in the province will be negotiating contracts. The 1974 survey identified only eight bargaining units covering 5,000 or more workers in which negotiations will take place; and the largest of these units covers approximately 7,000 workers.

Activity by Industry

In 1974, attention is likely to focus on bargaining in the trucking, urban transit, food store, telephone, meat packing, farm equipment, and aircraft industries. The 2,636 agreements terminating are almost equally divided between manufacturing (1,334) and other industries (1,302). On the other hand, 181,000 (53 per cent) of the employees, who will bargain are in the non-manufacturing sector as compared to 164,000 (47 per cent) in manufacturing.

Manufacturing: The 1,334 expiring manufacturing agreements are widely distributed among 20 major industry groups but almost half of them are accounted for by four groups: food and beverages, printing and publishing, metal fabricating, and non-metallic mineral products. In each of these, more than 100 agreements will expire, with the largest number being in metal fabricating where 211 contracts will be open. In two industry groups, only seven agreements will terminate during 1974; these are knitting mills and petroleum and coal products. (See Table 1).

In terms of employees, five industry groups will account for 56 per cent of the manufacturing workers that will bargain in 1974. More than 14,000 will be involved in negotiations in each of these groups which are food and beverages, fabricating metal products, machinery, transportation equipment and electrical products.

In terms of employees, the heaviest bargaining in a manufacturing industry will occur in the transportation equipment industry. The 24,000 workers that will participate are employed mainly in aircraft and automobile parts manufacturing. This industry also accounted for the largest numbers of workers involved in bargaining in 1973 when the three major automobile agreements covering 56,000 workers expired.

Non-Manufacturing: Bargaining in these industries during 1974 will be dominated by the transportation industry where 144 agreements covering 28,000 employees will be up for renewal. Of principal interest in transportation bargaining will be negotiations involving over-the-road truckers, urban transit, and shipping. Other non-manufacturing industries in which considerable bargaining will take place include communications (13,300 employees), retail trade (25,000 employees), educational services (10,500 employees), health and welfare services (20,000 employees), and federal government (36,300 employees).

In contrast to 1973, when the majority of construction pattern-setting agreements and the principal local government agreements expired, bargaining in these industries will be very light. Only 8,000 construction employees will participate in negotiations during the coming year, compared to 74,000 last year. This results from the fact that only 37 pattern-setting construction contracts will expire which compares to 228 such contracts expiring in 1973. Similarly, the number of employees who will be involved in local government negotiations during next year dropped to 7,900 from 31,000 in 1973.

Activity by Month

More than 32,000 workers will be bargaining during January and February next year. Of these 9,000 are covered by five key situations in rubber, textiles, can manufacturing and lake shipping. Developments in these major situations, and a few others in the early spring, may set the tone of bargaining for the remainder of the year.

As in previous years, bargaining during 1974 will concentrate in the spring. Of the 2,636 agreements that will be renogotiated, 1,018, including 31 of the 37 major construction contracts will terminate during the period from March to June. These agreements apply to 76,800 employees, or 34 per cent, of the annual total. Some major negotiations will affect 48,400 workers in meat packing, canning, farm equipment, automobile parts, electrical products, transit, food stores, education and health services, federal government, and again rubber and can manufacturing.

Bargaining for a total of 483 new contracts will take place in August, September and November. Major interest in September negotiations will be on the trucking industry, where two association agreements will be renegotiated for 8,000 over-the-road drivers and maintenance employees. Other major agreements that will open during the month will affect 12,500 workers in the aircraft, farm equipment, outboard motor, automobile and electrical products industries. November bargaining will be dominated by negotiations covering 12,400 telephone employees and 5,000 federal civil servants.

December continues to be the month of heaviest bargaining activity. The 524 agreements scheduled for renewal in December 1974 is about the same as for a year earlier. However, the number of employees covered by the contracts terminating will be 53,900 compared to 73,000 last year, when several large government agreements and the largest electrical products industry contract expired. The bulk of the 1974 December expirations are in non-manufacturing industries.

The lightest bargaining activity of the year ahead will be in July and October. Scheduled for termination in these months are 291 contracts covering 27,000 employees.

Major Agreements

Forty-eight agreements covering 1,000 or more workers will be up for renewal in 1974. Except for 13 agreements covering approximately 30,000 employees to which the Treasury Board of Canada is a party, these agreements are listed below.

Tables

Tables 1 and 2 in this document summarize the data by industry and month of agreement expiration. Tables 3, 4 and 5 present detailed data for industries other than construction. Finally, Table 6 lists the construction agreements that will expire during 1974 by contractor name, union, employee coverage and month of termination.

INTRODUCTION

This paper reports on the Ministry of Labour's eighth annual survey of collective agreement expirations in Ontario. The purpose of the survey is to indicate how much contract renewal bargaining can be expected in Ontario during 1975, and where it will occur.

The data used to describe the 1975 bargaining activity are numbers of collective agreements terminating during the year and the numbers of employees covered by them. The information was drawn from the Ministry's Collective Agreements Library and was current as of November 21st, 1974. The data should identify more than 80 per cent of the 1975 bargaining situations. They do not include 1975 bargaining situations that will result from recent and future certifications by the Ontario Labour Relations Board and a few agreements that were not yet signed when the data were compiled.

Overview

Within the limits stated in the immediately proceeding paragraph, 3,107 Ontario collective bargaining agreements will expire during 1975. They comprise 48 per cent of the 6,400 current bargaining situations recorded by the Agreements Library. The expiring agreements cover 494,700 workers, or 47 per cent of the 1,052,400 employees working under union contracts in Ontario. Both the number of agreements expiring and the employees affected by them are substantially more than were shown by comparable data for 1974, when 2,636 agreements covering 341,100 employees were open for revision.

Bargaining in 1975 will almost certainly take place in an economic climate that is dominated by rapidly rising prices. Accordingly, workers' efforts to cope with inflation will be a significant factor in both the bargaining process and the size of the settlements sought. At the same time demands may be tempered by high levels of unemployment.

Activity by Industry

The bargaining will be much heavier in non-manufacturing than in manufacturing industries. Non-manufacturing agreements account for 55 per cent (1,711) of the total agreements that will expire, and 63 per cent (313,200) of the employees who will bargain. (Table 1) Negotiations in several industries are likely to receive wide attention. Among these will be the bargaining in the major steel companies, nickel mining and refining, the clothing industry, paper mills, air and rail transportation, construction, utilities and local government.

Manufacturing: About the same number of manufacturing agreements will expire in 1975 as in the preceding year - 1,396 compared with 1,334. However, the number of workers who will participate in manufacturing bargaining will increase by more than 21,000 over the 160,400 workers involved in 1974 negotiations.

Four industry groups will account for almost half of the expiring manufacturing agreements: Food and Beverages, Paper and Allied Products, Printing and Publishing and Metal Fabricating. More than 100 agreements will expire in each of these industries, with the largest number occurring in the Metal Fabricating Industry.

In terms of employees, six industry groups - Food and Beverages, Textile Mill Products, Paper and Allied Products, Primary Metal Products, Metal Fabricating and Electrical Products - will account for 62 per cent of the manufacturing workers who will bargain in 1975. More than 10,000 employees will be involved in the negotiations in each of these industry groups.

Negotiations in the Primary Metal Industry will likely dominate bargaining in the Manufacturing Sector. Agreements for more than 26,000 employees located mainly at the Steel Company of Canada and Algoma Steel will be open for renewal.

Non-Manufacturing: Both the numbers of agreements expiring in non-manufacturing industries in 1975, and of employees covered by them, will be substantially larger than in 1974. The 1,711 non-manufacturing expirations is an increase of more than 400 over the 1974 total, and the 313,237 employees involved are almost double the 180,700 who negotiated in 1974.

In the Construction Industry 200 (70 per cent) of Ontario's 284 pattern-setting construction agreements will open for renewal and will affect 69,100 (71 per cent) of the 97,700 employees covered by such agreements. Practically all the major trades and urban centres will be involved. Attention will also focus on negotiations in several vital sectors of public employment including Ontario Hydro.

Activity by Month

Bargaining during 1975 will start off lightly, with contracts for 28,800 employees expiring in January and February. (Table 2) The principal negotiations in these months will involve 1,300 municipal workers in Hamilton and 1,100 textile employees.

Most of the bargaining will occur in the spring and early summer. Forty-eight per cent (1,478) of the agreements will open for revision between March and July. These agreements will involve 246,500 employees, about 50 per cent of the total affected by all agreements expiring during 1975. This spring and summer bargaining will affect 138,600 employees in the steel, paper, mining, electric utility, health and construction industries.

As in years past, December will be the month of heaviest bargaining activity. The 665 agreements scheduled for renewal in December 1975, and the 112,300 workers covered by them, represent totals substantially greater than for any of the preceding eight years. The bulk of the December expirations will occur in non-manufacturing industries, chiefly in health and welfare services and federal, provincial and local governments.

Major Agreements

The following is a list of the 38 agreements covering 1,000 or more workers each that will come up for renewal in 1975.

FOREWORD

This is the Ministry of Labour's ninth annual report describing the extent of collective bargaining that will take place in Ontario as a result of agreements scheduled to expire in 1976.

The information on which the report is based was obtained from the Ministry's Collective Agreements Library as of November 30, 1975. The data should identify more than 90 per cent of 1976 bargaining situations. They do not include situations that will result from recent and future certifications by the Ontario Labour Relations Board, and a few agreements that were not yet signed when the data were compiled.

The report consists of five tables. Part A of Table 1 shows the total number of agreements expiring by industry and month of expiration; and Part B shows the number of employees who will be affected. Table 2 gives a distribution of the total expirations by industry and size of bargaining unit. Table 3 lists those agreements covering 200 or more employees in the industries other than construction by month of expiration; and Table 4 lists them on an industry basis. In Table 5 are listed the pattern-setting construction agreements that will be open for negotiations.

An appendix is included that explains the SIC (Standard Industrial Classification), union and bargaining unit codes used in Tables 3 and 4.

The report was prepared in the Ministry's Research Branch by Agnes Gesing, under the supervision of Lenard Haywood. Diana Chung and the staff of the Collective Agreements Library assisted in the collection and preparation of the data, and Pat Caballero typed the report.

ONTARIO COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AGREEMENTS

EXPIRATIONS 1976

Summary

A lighter collective bargaining calendar is in store for Ontario in 1976 than in 1975, both in terms of the number of agreements that will be re-negotiated and the number of employees who will be affected. A total of 2,900 agreements covering 467,300 employees are scheduled to expire in 1976 (Table 1 A and B), compared with 3,100 agreements covering 494,700 employees in 1975. Sixteen per cent of the 1976 expirations apply to bargaining units of 200 employees or more, but they account for 75 per cent of the total employees who will be involved in bargaining (Table 2). Key industries in which bargaining will take place in 1976 include automobile manufacturing, electrical equipment, meat-packing, retail trade, education and health services. Important situations will also occur in the aluminum, transportation and communication industries and in government.

The economic setting facing negotiators as 1975 draws to a close is dominated by inflation and unemployment. The consumer price index in Canada rose 10.4 per cent between November 1974 and November 1975. In the same period unemployment in Ontario increased from 4.4 per cent to 6.0 per cent of the labour force, seasonally adjusted. The most significant factor that will affect next year's bargaining is, however, the imposition on October 14, 1975 of wage and price controls by the federal government in its fight against inflation. The programme, which is scheduled to run for three years, limits wage and benefit package increases to 12 per cent in its first year, 10 per cent in the second year and 8 per cent in the third year.

Activity by Month. The greatest number of expirations, 381, covering 41,600 employees, will occur in March (Table 1, A and B). More than 200 agreements, affecting between 29,400 and 93,100 employees, will expire in each of the months of January, April, May, June, August, September and December. The number of agreements expiring in the remaining four months ranges from 128 in November to 177 in February, covering between 13,800 and 21,900 employees.

Terminations of the major meat-packing agreements will take place in May (Table 3). Agreements with the four major car manufacturers will run out in September. Hospital agreements will expire mainly in March and September; and the bulk of school teachers agreements will terminate in August. Almost two-thirds of the construction expirations will occur in April (Table 5).

Activity by Industry. Manufacturing industries account for 47 per cent of the total agreements expiring in 1976 and 44 per cent of the total employees. Bargaining in this sector will be dominated by the transportation equipment industry where 89 agreements will be re-negotiated for 65,800 employees, the majority of whom are employed in the automobile industry. Other manufacturing industries in which a large number of employees will be involved in 1976 bargaining are food and beverage, with 198 expirations covering 22,000 employees; metal fabricating, with 180 agreements covering 15,100 employees; and electrical products, with 110 agreements covering 25,100 employees.

The heaviest bargaining in 1976 will occur in non-manufacturing industries, and will be concentrated in retail trade, education, health services and federal government. These four groups account for 68 per cent of the non-manufacturing employees who will be involved. Important negotiations will also occur in the transportation and communications industries. For construction, 1976 will be the light year in the normal 2-year cycle of bargaining in this industry. Only 64 of the 274 pattern-setting agreements covering 19,300 workers will be open for re-negotiations, compared with 200 agreements covering 69,100 employees in 1975.

Major Expirations

The outcome of negotiations for 62 major agreements (each covering 1,000 or more employees) expiring in 1976 will likely have significant effects on the economy of Ontario. These agreements cover 40 per cent of the total employees who will be engaged in next year's bargaining. They are as follows:

FOREWORD

This is the tenth annual report of the Ontario Ministry of Labour describing the extent of collective bargaining likely to take place in Ontario as a result of agreements scheduled to expire in 1977.

The information on which the report is based was obtained from the Ministry's Collective Agreements Library as of November 30, 1976. The data should identify more than 90 per cent of 1977 bargaining situations. They do not include situations that will result from recent and future certifications by the Ontario Labour Relations Board, and a few agreements that were not yet signed when the data were compiled.

The report consists of four tables. Part A of Table 1 shows the total number of all agreements expiring by industry and month of expiration; and Part B shows the number of employees who will be affected. Table 2 gives a distribution of the total expirations by industry and size of bargaining unit. Table 3 lists only those agreements covering 200 or more employees by month of expiration; and Table 4 lists them by industry. The only change in the format of the report from last year is that expiring construction agreements are no longer listed in a separate table but are included in Tables 3 and 4.

An appendix is included that explains the SIC (Standard Industrial Classification), union and bargaining unit codes used in Tables 3 and 4.

The report was prepared in the Research Branch by Agnes Gesing, with the assistance of the staff of the Collective Agreements Library and Pat Caballero.

ONTARIO COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AGREEMENTS

Summary

The 1977 collective bargaining calendar for Ontario will be slightly heavier than last year's load in terms of the number of agreements that will be renegotiated, but considerably more employees will be involved. A total of 2,941 agreements covering 548,700 employees are scheduled to expire during 1977 (Table 1 A and B) compared with 2,922 agreements covering 467,300 employees in 1976. Ninety-two of the 1977 expirations apply to bargaining units of 1,000 employees or more, accounting for 46 per cent of the total employees who will be bargaining (Table 2). The principal industries in which negotiations will take place include meat-packing, rubber, metal cans, agricultural implements, auto parts, electrical products, construction, transportation, electric and gas utilities, education and provincial government.

Inflation and unemployment remained the main concerns of the economy as 1977 began. The wage and price controls programme will continue to be the focus of government efforts to cope with these problems. Now in its second year, the programme in general limits total wage and benefit increases to 8 per cent until October 14, 1977 and to 6 per cent thereafter until October 31, 1978, when the programme is scheduled to expire. In exceptional cases, on the basis of past wage experience these limits may be increased to a maximum of 10 per cent and 8 per cent, respectively. However, many of the employees bargaining this year are covered by agreements that were last negotiated in 1974 and will expect settlements substantially above the guidelines to recoup purchasing power perceived as lost during the period of rapid price increases prior to the introduction of controls.

Monthly Activity. The majority of the 1977 expirations will occur in January, March to June, August and December (Table 1, A and B). More than 200 agreements will be involved in each of those seven months. together accounting for 74 per cent of the total expirations. At least 20,000 employees will be affected in each month, except July, October and November when between 12,300 and 19,100 employees will be involved. November will be the lightest month for both agreement expirations and employees affected. December will be the heaviest month, with April following closely.

Expirations of the major can, rubber, electrical products and Ontario Hydro agreements will occur in February, March and May (Table 3). Agreements with the major meat-packing firms will run out in May and July, and the bulk of agreements in the construction industry will expire in April. Summer bargaining will be dominated by school teachers whose agreements expire mainly in August. Fall bargaining will be particularly heavy with trucking agreements expiring in September, provincial government agreements in September and December, and railroad agreements in December.

Industry Activity. About 47 per cent of the 1977 expirations are in manufacturing industries, covering 33 per cent of the total employees involved. Bargaining in this sector will be concentrated for agreements or employees in the food and beverage, printing and publishing, metal fabricating, machinery, transportation equipment and electrical products industries. The major bargaining situations in manufacturing are mostly in meat-packing, rubber, can, farm equipment, auto parts and electrical products.

The greatest number of 1977 expirations will occur in non-manufacturing industries and will be concentrated for agreements or employees in construction, transportation, utilities, wholesale trade, education, health and government. Three-fourths of the major bargaining situations in 1977 are in the non-manufacturing sector, affecting mostly teachers, construction, railroad and provincial government employees.

FOREWORD

This is the eleventh annual report of the Ontario Ministry of Labour describing the extent of collective bargaining likely to take place in Ontario as a result of agreements scheduled to expire in 1978.

The information on which the report is based was obtained from the Ministry's Collective Agreements Library as of November 30, 1977. The data should identify more than 90 per cent of 1978 bargaining situations. They do not include situations that will result from recent and future certifications by the Ontario Labour Relations Board, and a few agreements that were not yet signed when the data were compiled.

The report consists of four tables. Part A of Table 1 shows the total number of all agreements expiring by industry and month of expiration; and Part B shows the number of employees who will be affected. Table 2 gives a distribution of the total expirations by industry and size of bargaining unit. Table 3 lists only those agreements covering 200 or more employees by month of expiration; and Table 4 lists them by industry.

An appendix is included that explains the SIC (Standard Industrial Classification), union and bargaining unit codes used in Tables 3 and 4.

The report was prepared by the staff of the Research Branch, Ontario Ministry of Labour.

ONTARIO COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AGREEMENTS EXPIRATIONS, 1978

Summary

A record collective bargaining calendar is on schedule for Ontario in 1978 as 3,409 collective agreements covering 637,700 employees are due to expire (Table 1A and 1B). Both figures represent a considerable increase over those for 1977 when 2,491 agreements covering 549,000 employees were scheduled to expire. Ninety-four of the 1978 expirations apply to bargaining units of 1,000 or more employees, together accounting for 42 per cent of the total employees who will be bargaining (Table 2). These agreements are listed at the end of this section. Key industries in which bargaining will take place include primary metals, mining, paper, construction, meat packing, clothing, electrical products, electrical utilities, retail trade, education, health care and government.

Negotiations in 1978 will begin in an economic climate beset by continuing high unemployment and a rate of inflation much higher than was expected under the wage and price controls programme which is in its final year of operation. The unemployment rate in Ontario increased to 6.2 per cent in November 1977 from 5.8 per cent a year ago. In the same period, the rate of inflation for Canada climbed to 9.1 per cent from 5.6 per cent, but was considerably below 1975's double-digit rate. An important element in next year's negotiations will be the Federal Government's plan to begin phasing out the wage and price controls on April 14, 1978. While the decontrol process will help to reduce the possibility of an immediate wage explosion, continuing inflation and concerns over job security in industries threatened by layoffs will combine to create a number of difficult bargaining situations in 1978.

Industry Activity. Non-manufacturing industries account for 54 per cent of the 1978 expirations covering 66 per cent of the employees involved. Most bargaining activity in this section will occur, for agreements or employees, in education, construction, health, retail trade, federal government, mining, electrical utilities, transportation, communications and personal services. Three-fourths of the major bargaining situations in 1978, covering four-fifths of the employees covered by them are in the non-manufacturing sector, affecting mostly teachers, construction, mining, electrical utility, food stores, and federal government employees.

In manufacturing, bargaining will be concentrated for agreements or employees in the primary metals and related metal fabrication industries, paper, electrical products, meat packing, transportation equipment and non-metal mineral products. The major bargaining situations are mostly in steel, paper, electrical products, and meat packing.

Monthly Activity. Early bargaining will cover 50,610 employees under 408 agreements expiring in January and February. The major situations will arise at Dupont of Canada, Lakehead Terminals, and with the Federal Government.

As in previous years, negotiations during 1978 will concentrate in the spring. Fifty per cent of the expirations covering 53 per cent of the employees occur between March and June. Most of the bargaining in March will involve electric utility employees mainly at Ontario Hydro, hospital support employees, and workers in the electrical products industry. April negotiations will be dominated by construction and paper industry employees. Bargaining in the meat packing industry will highlight activities in May, and the principal negotiations in June will be conducted for employees in retail food stores and in the federal government.

About 30 per cent of the employees are covered by 732 agreements which terminate during the summer months. In July, bargaining will focus on 36,000 employees in the primary metals and metal mining industries, as contracts with International Nickel, Steel Company of Canada and Algoma Steel expire. Negotiations in August will be dominated by public school teachers, and in September by hospital nurses.

Negotiations during the last three months of the year will affect 63,750 employees subject to 546 of the expiring agreements. The bulk of the bargaining will occur in November when contracts for 10,500 employees at Bell Canada run out.

FOREWORD

This is the twelfth annual report of the Ontario Ministry of Labour describing the extent of collective bargaining likely to take place in Ontario as a result of agreements scheduled to expire in 1979.

The information on which the report is based was obtained from the Ministry's Collective Agreements Library as of November 30, 1978. The data should identify more than 90 per cent of 1979 bargaining situations. They do not include situations that will result from recent and future certifications by the Ontario Labour Relations Board, and a few agreements that were not yet signed when the data were compiled.

The report consists of four tables. Part A of Table 1 shows the total number of all agreements expiring by industry and month of expiration; and Part B shows the number of employees who will be affected. Table 2 gives a distribution of the total expirations by industry and size of bargaining unit. Table 3 lists only those agreements covering 200 or more employees by month of expiration; and Table 4 lists them by industry.

An appendix is included that explains the SIC (Standard Industrial Classification), union and bargaining unit codes used in Tables 3 and 4.

The report was prepared by the staff of the Research Branch, Ontario Ministry of Labour.

ONTARIO COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AGREEMENTS
EXPIRATIONS, 1979

Summary

During 1979 a total of 2,210 Ontario collective agreements covering almost 398,000 employees are scheduled to expire (Tables 1A and 1B). Both figures are considerably below the corresponding 1978 totals of 3,409 agreements covering 638,000 employees. The 1979 expirations include 43 which relate to bargaining units of 1,000 or more employees, and these together account for more than 48 per cent of all employees bargaining during the year (Table 2). These agreements are listed at the end of this section. Key industries in which bargaining will occur include transportation equipment, electrical products, food and beverage, transportation, electrical utilities, education, health services and public administration.

Negotiations in 1979 will commence in a difficult economic climate marked by continuing high rates of unemployment and inflation. In addition, bargaining will be entirely free of the constraints imposed by the anti-inflation program, as the phase-out of controls is finalized by the end of 1978. The seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate in Ontario in the third quarter of 1978 was 7.3 per cent, compared with 7.1 per cent in the corresponding quarter one year earlier. During that period the Consumer Price Index for Canada rose by 9.3 per cent. The key issues in collective bargaining during 1979 are likely to continue to revolve around attempts to combine adequate protection against inflation with improved job security provisions. These same issues have been prominent in a number of major bargaining situations which have occurred since the decontrol process commenced in April 1978, resulting in a dramatic increase in man-days lost in industrial disputes during this period.

Industry Activity. Scheduled collective agreement expirations for 1979 are evenly divided between manufacturing and non-manufacturing industries, although the number of employees involved is somewhat greater for the latter group. Bargaining activity in the manufacturing sector will centre around the negotiations for renewal of the major auto industry agreements last negotiated in 1976. Major contracts are also due to expire in the food and beverage, electrical products, petrochemicals and glass industries. In the non-manufacturing sector, important bargaining situations include those in electrical utilities, trucking, education, health services and public administration. Bargaining activity in the construction industry will be much lighter than in 1978 as a result of the large number of 2-year agreements concluded in this year's major bargaining round. The number of construction bargaining situations arising from the expirations listed in this report may also be affected by the recently imposed legislative requirement that previously separate bargaining groups in the industrial, commercial and institutional sector of the industry integrate their agreements and bargaining arrangements with those for the rest of this sector on a province-wide, single-trade basis. It should also be noted that 1979 expirations in a number of industries, particularly in local administration, may eventually be larger than indicated depending on the outcome of current negotiations for renewal of agreements expiring in late 1978.

Monthly Activity. There is a heavy concentration of agreement expirations in the first four months of 1979, including Lakehead Terminals and three major Federal Government contracts in January, Northern Telecom and Rio Algom (Atlas Steels) in February, and Ontario Hydro and the Ontario Provincial Police in March. In addition, several agreements in the petroleum refining and chemicals industries expire in the first four months of the year, including Imperial Oil, Gulf Oil, Shell Canada, Esso, Dow, Polysar and Du Pont. In March, also, 93 agreements covering more than 11,000 workers expire in health and welfare services. Most of the 1979 construction industry expirations occur in April, involving close to 11,000 employees.

Bargaining during the summer months will be dominated by education services, with 99 agreements covering almost 57,000 employees expiring in August, and by the auto industry, where 51,000 employees are covered by the major UAW agreements with Chrysler, Ford and General Motors expiring in September. Other major contracts expiring during the summer months include the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau, with 3 agreements covering almost 10,000 employees expiring in June and September, Inco at Port Colborne (1,300 employees, in July), and the Toronto Star (1,600 employees, in June).

Expirations during the last three months of the year will be mainly concentrated in December when 236 agreements terminate, including Brewers Warehousing and the major brewing companies, Canadian General Electric (5,500 employees) and several municipal agreements. In November and December two important Federal Government agreements expire, affecting almost 30,000 members of the Public Service Alliance and 7,300 members of the Letter Carriers.

Major Expirations

Following is a list of the 43 major agreements, each covering 1,000 or more employees, that are due for renegotiation in 1979.

FOREWORD

This is the thirteenth annual report of the Ontario Ministry of Labour describing the extent of collective bargaining likely to take place in Ontario as a result of agreements scheduled to expire in 1980.

The information on which the report is based was obtained from the Ministry's Collective Agreements Library as of November 30, 1979. The data should identify more than 90 per cent of 1980 bargaining situations. They do not include situations that will result from recent and future certifications by the Ontario Labour Relations Board, and new agreements that were not yet signed when the data were compiled.

The report consists of four tables. Part A of Table 1 shows the total number of all agreements expiring by industry and month of expiration; and Part B shows the number of employees who will be affected. Table 2 gives a distribution of the total expirations by industry and size of bargaining unit. Table 3 lists only those agreements covering 200 or more employees by month of expiration; and Table 4 lists them by industry.

An appendix is included that explains the SIC (Standard Industrial Classification), union and bargaining unit codes used in Tables 3 and 4.

The report was prepared by the staff of the Research Branch, Ontario Ministry of Labour.

ONTARIO COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AGREEMENTS EXPIRATIONS, 1980

Summary

During 1980 a total of 3,270 Ontario collective agreements covering almost 587,000 employees are scheduled to expire (Table 1A and 1B). Both figures are considerably higher than the corresponding totals for 1979 of 2,210 agreements covering 398,000 employees. The 1980 expirations include 89 agreements which relate to bargaining units of 1,000 or more employees, and account for more than 45 per cent of all employees bargaining during the year (Table 2). These agreements are listed at the end of this section. Key industries in which bargaining will occur include construction, pulp and paper, rubber, food and beverage, retail trade, electrical products, electrical utilities, education, health services and public administration.

Negotiations in 1980 will commence in a difficult economic climate marked by continuing high rates of unemployment and inflation. The seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate in Ontario in the third quarter of 1979 fell to 6.4 per cent, from 7.3 per cent in the corresponding quarter a year earlier, but it is expected to rise again in light of the anticipated slowdown in the economy. During that period the Consumer Price Index for Canada rose by 8.7 per cent. The key issues in collective bargaining during 1980 are likely to continue to revolve around attempts to combine adequate protection against inflation with improved pensions and job security provisions. These issues have been prominent in a number of major bargaining situations during the past year, and have contributed to the relatively large number of mandays lost from industrial disputes in this period.

Industry Activity. Agreements in the non-manufacturing sector account for 55 per cent of the 1980 expirations and cover 68 per cent of the employees involved. Bargaining activity will be concentrated in the construction industry, where 74 agreements covering over 104,000 employees are scheduled for renewal. Other important negotiations in this sector will occur for agreements and employees, in transportation, electrical utilities, wholesale and retail trade, education, health and welfare, and public administration.

Bargaining activity in the manufacturing sector will centre around the negotiations for renewal of major pulp and paper industry agreements last negotiated in 1978. Important contracts are also due to expire in the meat packing, tobacco, rubber, machinery, aerospace, auto parts and electrical products industries.

It should also be noted that 1980 expirations in a number of industry groups, particularly in those involving teachers and civic employees, may eventually be larger than indicated depending on the outcome of negotiations still in progress.

Monthly Activity. The 1980 expirations are heavily concentrated in the first four and last four months of the year. The bargaining calendar indicates that 1,016 agreements will open up between January and April and 1,359 between September and December, together accounting for 73 per cent of the total expirations. In terms of of expiring agreements, December will be the heaviest bargaining month, with 653 contracts covering 73,000 employees. In terms of employees, April will be the most active month, with 152,000 workers covered by 404 agreements. February will be the lightest month for both agreement expirations and employees affected.

Early bargaining will cover less than 42,000 employees under 273 agreements expiring in January and February, with major situations involving Du Pont of Canada, Toronto Electric Commission and the first two large agreements with rubber producers, for whom 1980 is the principal year in their usual three-year cycle of negotiations. Bargaining in March will concentrate on agreements with auto parts, electrical products and ready-mix concrete manufacturers, Ontario Hydro, the Ontario Provincial Police, and hospital support workers represented by the Service Employees International Union. April negotiations will be dominated by construction, pulp and paper and agricultural implement industry employees. Most of the construction agreements, including 25 single-trade contracts covering about 90,000 workers in the industrial, commercial and institutional sector of the industry, will open up for renewal on April 30. Bargaining in the meat packing industry will highlight activities in May, while the principal negotiations in June will embrace retail food and liquor stores employees.

During the summer months extensive negotiations will take place in education services, with 79 agreements affecting over 35,000 employees expiring August 31, and in hospitals where more than 26,000 employees are covered by 159 agreements expiring in September. The latter include all of the contracts with the Ontario Nurses Association, and those covering support staff represented by the Canadian Union of Public Employees at 54 hospitals across the province.

Expirations during the last three months of the year will be mainly concentrated in December, when the remaining portion of agreements affecting various units in health care institutions expire. The majority of these 128 agreements covering some 4,700 employees comprise stationary engineers, paramedics and office employees in hospitals and other welfare organizations. Other major contracts expiring in December include several municipal agreements for civic employees, firefighters and policemen, with the largest unit covering 5,400 uniformed officers of the Metropolitan Toronto Police Force.

Foreword

This is the fourteenth annual report of the Ontario Ministry of Labour describing the extent of collective bargaining likely to take place in Ontario as a result of agreements scheduled to expire in 1981.

The data in this report are derived from information available in the Ministry's Collective Agreements Library as of November 30, 1980. The data should identify more than 90 per cent of 1981 bargaining situations. They do not include situations that will result from recent and future certifications by the Ontario Labour Relations Board, and new agreements that were not yet signed when the data were completed.

The report consists of four tables. Part A of Table 1 shows the total number of all agreements expiring by industry and month of expiration; and Part B shows the number of employees who will be affected. Table 2 gives a distribution of the total expirations by industry and size of bargaining unit. Table 3 lists only those agreements covering 200 or more employees by month of expiration; and Table 4 lists them by industry.

An appendix is included that explains the SIC (Standard Industrial Classification), union and bargaining unit codes used in Tables 3 and 4.

The report was prepared by the staff of the Research Branch, Ontario Ministry of Labour.

ONTARIO COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AGREEMENT EXPIRATIONS, 1981

Summary

Nineteen eighty-one will be another busy, though lighter, year of collective bargaining in Ontario. A total of 3,024 agreements covering 478,000 employees (Table 1 A and B) are scheduled to expire, compared with 3,270 agreements covering 587,000 employees in 1980. The 1981 calendar represents 39 percent of the total 7,838 agreements on file in the Ministry of Labour's Collective Agreements Library at November 30, 1980, and covers 36 percent of the 1,339,700 employees under all agreements. The calendar includes 61 major agreements (those covering 1,000 or more employees each) which account for more than 43 percent of the total number of employees for whom bargaining will be conducted in 1981 (Table 2). These major agreements are listed at the end of this section. The principal industries in which bargaining will take place include basic steel and related metal fabricating, can manufacturing, electrical products, transportation, communcations, education, health care and government.

Bargaining for new contracts in 1981 will take place within a very difficult economic environment. Ontario's unemployment improved only slightly in 1980, dropping to a seasonally-adjusted rate of 6.3 percent in November from 6.6 percent a year ago. In the same period the inflation rate for Canada increased sharply to 11.2 percent from 9.4 percent, the highest since the wage and price controls of 1975; and interest rates rose at record high level. Economists predict a continuation of high inflation and interest rates in 1981, a situation which will put considerable pressure on union negotiators to seek substantial wage settlements. Several union leaders have already announced their intention to bargain for wage increases ranging from 15 to 20 percent per contract year, and for stronger job security provisions.

Industry Activity

Fifty-eight percent of the agreement expiring in 1981, are in non-manufacturing industries and cover 68 percent of the employees who will be involved in bargaining. Most of the bargaining in this sector will occur for agreements or employees in transportation, communications, education, health care and government. Fifty-one of the major bargaining situations are in this sector, and account for more than four-fifths of the total number of employees involved in the 61 major expirations.

In terms of number of agreements or employees, bargaining in the manufacturing sector will take place mostly in the primary metal, metal fabricating, electrical products, food and beverage and printing industries. The most important negotiations will involve agreements in the basic steel, metal can and aircraft manufacturing.

Monthly Activity

The bulk of next year's expirations will occur in January, March, April, June, August and December. More than 200 agreements will be involved in each of these months, which together account for 60 percent of the total expirations. At least 27,000 employees will be involved in negotiations in each month, except February, May, September and October. The eight heavy months together account for 88 per cent of the total number of employees who will be bargaining in 1981.

In terms of agreements, March will be the heaviest month of bargaining, with 555 expiring agreements covering 60,000 employees. In terms of employees, August will be the most active month, with close to 96,000 employees covered by 301 agreements. The lightest bargaining month will be October for both agreements and employees, with 108 agreements covering 10,000 employees.

The major can agreement with Continental Can will be open for renegotiation in February. The new agreement with the company will likely set the pattern for settlements with American Can and Crown Cork and Seal, where agreements expire in March and June respectively. Also scheduled for renegotiation in March are agreements covering 22,000 support staff employees represented mostly by the Service Employees Union at 60 hospitals. The principal agreement with Westinghouse expires in April, as well as the major construction agreements with the Pipe Line Contractors Association of Canada, Metro Toronto Apartment Builders Association, Ontario Form Work Association and Toronto Residential Low Rise Forming Contractors Association. The key agreement with Alcan Canada Products expires in May.

Summer bargaining will be dominated by the negotiations for renewal of the steel and related metal fabricating agreements with the Steel Company of Canada and Algoma Steel, which expire in July. Negotiations for some 90,000 teachers will follow in August. Other key negotiations will include agreements with the Toronto Transit Commission and DeHavilland Aircraft, both expiring in June.

The principal negotiations in the fall will involve 90,000 railway employees across Canada, including 35,000 in Ontario, whose agreements expire in December. Also involved in December bargaining are key agreements with the Council of Printing Industry of Canada covering 1,930 employees, and the master agreement with Toronto lithographers covering 2,160 employees. In September 1,650 miners will be renegotiating agreements with Denison Mines and Rio Algom Mines. Another 1,400 employees will open negotiations with National Steel Car in October, and 13,500 employees will negotiate with Bell Canada in November.

Agreements covering federal, provincial and municipal government employees will expire mostly in January, March and December.

Major Expirations

Following is a list of the 61 major agreements, each covering 1,000 or more employees, that will be due for renegotiation in 1981.

FOREWORD

This is the fifteenth annual report of the Ontario Ministry of Labour describing the extent of collective bargaining likely to take place in Ontario as a result of agreements scheduled to expire in 1982.

The data in this report are derived from information available in the Ministry's Collective Agreements Library as of November 30, 1981. They identify all 1982 bargaining situations that will result from recent and future certifications by the Ontario Labour Relations Board, and new agreements that were not yet signed when the data were completed.

The report consists of four tables. Part A of Table 1 shows the total number of all agreements expiring by industry and month of expiration; and Part B shows the number of employees who will be affected. Table 2 gives a distribution of the total expirations by industry and size of bargaining unit. Table 3 lists only those agreements covering 200 or more employees by month of expiration; and Table 4 lists them by industry.

An appendix is included that explains the SIC (Standard Industrial Classification), union and bargaining unit codes used in Tables 3 and 4.

The report was prepared by the staff of the Research Branch, Ontario Ministry of Labour.

OVERVIEW OF ONTARIO COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AGREEMENT EXPIRATIONS AND NEGOTIATIONS IN 1982

Introduction

In 1982 Ontario faces the heaviest collective bargaining activity in its history. During the year, 3,865 agreements which cover 706,055 employees will expire. Information on these agreements by industry and month of expiry and number of employees covered by these agreements is provided in Tables IA and IB. The calendar includes 100 major agreements (those covering 1,000 employees or more), which account for about one-half of the total number of employees who will be involved in bargaining. A list of these major agreements is presented at the end of this overview.

Agreements that come open in 1982 represent 47 per cent of the 8,207 agreements on file in the Ministry of Labour's Collective Agreements Library as of November 30, 1981. These agreements involve approximately 52 per cent of the 1,359,400 employees covered by the total file of agreements.

As Table IA shows, most of next year's expirations will occur in the months of March, April, May, June, August, September and December. These seven months account for 79 per cent of the expirations and 89 per cent of the employees involved. In terms of agreements, the heaviest month will be December, when 722 agreements covering almost 90,000 employees will terminate. In terms of employees, September will be the most active month; there are over 118,000 employees covered by 554 agreements that will expire in this month.

Non-manufacturing industries account for 61 per cent of the 1982 expirations and 69 per cent of the total employees affected. Based on the number of employees involved, most of the bargaining in this sector will occur in construction, education, government, and health and welfare, while bargaining in the manufacturing sector will be concentrated in the transportation equipment, paper products, electrical products and food and beverage industries. (See Table IB.)

Economic Setting

Collective bargaining in 1982 will take place in an economic climate beset by continuing high levels of unemployment, inflation and interest rates. Ontario's unemployment rate rose to 7.1 per cent in November 1981 from 6.3 per cent a year ago. For the same twelve-month period, Canada's inflation rate increased to 12.2 per cent from 11.2 per cent. Interest rates remain high, although they have dropped from recent record levels.

The uncertain economic climate will build considerable pressures on negotiators. Several companies have already announced their intention to seek wage cuts or hold wages to present levels in efforts to improve their competitive positions. The unions, on the other hand, will demand substantial wage increases and new or improved cost-of-living clauses to help employees restore and maintain their purchasing power.

Key Negotiations

Within the overall heavy bargaining calendar in 1982, key negotiations will occur in the meat packing, paper products, automobile, electrical products, nickel mining, construction, trucking, electrical utilities, retail food, education and health care industries and in government. The timing of expirations for agreements in these areas of the economy is outlined below.

Early bargaining will focus on 15,200 employees at Ontario Hydro represented by the Canadian Public Employees Union, where the agreement expires in March. Agreements for 2,000 employees represented by the Service Employees Union at fifteen hospitals in the Windsor area also expire in March.

Negotiations in the spring and early summer will be dominated by the construction, paper products, nickel mining and meat packing industries. Agreements covering 109,000 employees in the construction industry and 20,000 employees at Abitibi Price and 9 other paper companies expire mainly in April. Contracts for 12,500 employees at Inco Metals and 4,000 employees at Canada Packers, Burns Meats and Swift expire in May. Other significant expirations during this period affect 9,000 hospital employees represented by the Service Employees Union at forty-six hospitals in central Ontario (May), 2,000 employees at J.M. Schneider (July), and 2,100 employees at Falconbridge Nickel Mines (August).

Bargaining in the summer will also be very important in education. Contracts covering 80,000 elementary and secondary school teachers and 10,600 faculty and support staff at Ontario's twenty-two community colleges expire in August. Agreements that cover over 5,000 employees represented by the Carpenters Union at the logging operations of paper companies also come open in August.

Bargaining will be particularly heavy in the fall. Agreements for 50,000 employees at Chrysler Canada, Ford Motor and General Motors expire in September. Also expiring in this month are agreements for 40,000 employees represented by the Canadian Public Employees Union and the Ontario Nurses Association at the majority of hospitals in the province, and agreements between the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau and the Teamsters Union, covering 5,000 employees.

Agreements covering 40,000 retails clerks and warehouse employees at Canada Safeway, Dominion Stores, Great Atlantic and Pacific Company, Loblaws and Steinberg expire at various times between April and September. In December contracts terminate for 20,000 provincial and municipal police, firefighters and civic employees; for 6,000 employees at Canadian General Electric; and 3,000 employees at Carling O'Keefe, Labatt's and Molson's breweries.

FOREWORD

This is the sixteenth annual report of the Ontario Ministry of Labour describing the extent of collective bargaining likely to take place in Ontario as a result of agreements scheduled to expire in 1983.

The data in this report are derived from information available in the Ministry's Collective Agreements Library as of December 4, 1982. They identify all 1983 bargaining situations known to the Ministry at that date. They do not include situations that will result from recent and future certifications by the Ontario Labour Relations Board, and new agreements that were not yet signed when the data were completed.

The report consists of four tables. Part A of Table 1 shows the total number of all agreements expiring by industry and month of expiration; and Part B shows the number of employees who will be affected. Table 2 gives a distribution of the total expirations by industry and size of bargaining unit. Table 3 lists only those agreements covering 200 or more employees by month of expiration; and Table 4 lists them by industry.

An appendix is included that explains the SIC (Standard Industrial Classification), union and bargaining unit codes used in Tables 3 and 4.

The report was prepared by the staff of the Research Branch, Ontario Ministry of Labour.

OVERVIEW OF ONTARIO COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AGREEMENT EXPIRATIONS AND NEGOTIATIONS IN 1983

Introduction

In 1983 the collective bargaining calendar in Ontario will be lighter than in 1982 when the number of agreement expirations reached a record high. In the year ahead, 3,337 collective agreements covering 439,795 employees will come open for negotiation, while in 1982 there were 3,865 compared with agreement expirations covering 706,055 employees. The sharp drop in the number of employees is the result of a lower incidence in 1983 of major agreement expirations, those covering 1,000 or more employees. In 1982 there were 100 major expirations, but only 55 will occur in 1983. The 55 agreements that expire in 1983 are listed at the end of this overview.

The agreements expiring in 1983 represent 40 percent of the 8,432 agreements on file in the Ministry of Labour's Collective Library as of December 10, 1982. They involve about 33 percent of the 1,349,500 employees covered by the total number of agreements in the Library.

Collective agreement expirations provide a measure of the extent of bargaining that is likely to occur during the coming year. However, bargaining in 1983 will be limited by provincial and federal legislated restraints on compensation increases for public sector employees. An estimated 837 provincial public sector agreements that expire between January and September 1983, affecting 125,969 employees, will be extended by Ontario's Inflation Restraint Act for one year, with a 5 percent compensation increase. In the federal public sector, 94 agreements covering 61,455 employees will be extended for two years, with compensation increases of 6 percent in the first year and 5 percent in the second year. In total, 931 agreements affecting 187,424 provincial and federal public sector employees will be renewed by extension in 1983.

March and December have the largest number of expirations in 1983, with more than 500 agreements terminating in each of these months. In terms of employees, December is the heaviest month with 69,230 employees. Other relatively heavy months in terms of employees are March, with 44,913 employees, and June, with 42,706 employees. Together, March, June, August and December account for 58 percent of the total number of employees affected by 1983 expirations.

Economic Setting

Collective bargaining in 1983 will commence in an economic environment marked by severe economic recession, high levels of unemployment, and an inflation rate in the 10 per cent range. Based on recent economic reports, unemployment will remain high throughout 1983 as no marked turnaround in the economy from its sharpest downturn since World War II is expected next year. However, a decline in the inflation rate to around 8 per cent has been forecast.

Given the economic climate expected in 1983, more moderation in the magnitude of negotiated compensation increases should be observed. Low levels of industrial capacity utilization in the face of depressed markets and slack in labour markets should contribute to such a trend.

In these economic conditions one might predict that job security rather than substantial wage and benefit gains will have a priority during collective bargaining in 1983. However, in a number of bargaining situations this trade off may not be observed because of skepticism on the part of labour that moderation in compensation demands translate into improved job security.

Key Negotiations

In 1983, key negotiations will occur in the rubber, farm equipment, motor vehicle parts, aircraft, petrochemical, clothing and printing industries. The principal agreements in these industries include:

- In the rubber industry, agreements covering 4,400 employees represented by the Rubber Workers at Goodyear, Firestone and Uniroyal expire in February, April and September.

- Agreements in the motor vehicle parts industry expire throughout 1983 and cover 8,200 employees represented by the Auto Workers.

- In aircraft manufacturing, agreements between McDonnell Douglas and Auto Workers affecting 4,500 employees expire in October.

- In the petrochemical industry, the Energy and Chemical Workers will renegotiate agreements for 2,200 employees at Gulf Canada and Polysar which expire in January and March.

- In the clothing industry, agreements with the Toronto Dress and Sportswear Manufacturers Guild and the Men's Clothing Manufacturers Association, covering 2,800 employees, expire in July.

- In the printing industry, agreements with the Toronto Star, Council of Printing Industries, and Toronto and District Lithographing Companies that covering 3,778 employees expire in July and December.

FOREWORD

This is the seventeenth annual report of the Ontario Ministry of Labour describing the extent of collective bargaining likely to take place in Ontario for renewal of agreements scheduled to expire in 1984.

The data in this report are derived from information available in the Ministry's Collective Agreements Library as of December 5, 1982. They identify all 1984 bargaining situations known to the Ministry at that date. They do not include situations that will result from recent and future certifications by the Ontario Labour Relations Board, and new agreements that were not yet signed when the data were completed.

The report consists of four tables. Part A of Table 1 shows the total number of all agreements expiring by industry and month of expiration; and Part B shows the number of employees who will be affected. Table 2 gives a distribution of the total expirations by industry and size of bargaining unit. Table 3 lists only those agreements covering 200 or more employees by month of expiration; and Table 4 lists them by industry.

An appendix is included that explains the SIC (Standard Industrial Classification), union and bargaining unit codes used in Tables 3 and 4.

The report was prepared by the staff of the Research Branch, Ontario Ministry of Labour.

ONTARIO COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AGREEMENT EXPIRATIONS, 1984

Heaviest Bargaining Calendar

The 1984 collective bargaining calendar for Ontario is the heaviest on record, with 3,997 agreements affecting 820,260 employees scheduled for renewal during the year (see Tables 1A and 1B). The previous peak was in 1982, when 3,865 agreements covering 706,055 employees were up for renegotiation.

Next year's expiring agreements represent about 47 percent of the total 8,534 agreements on file in the Ministry of Labour's Collective Agreements Library as of December 5, 1983, and involve almost 61 percent of the 1,352,846 employees covered by the total file of agreements. The principal industries in which bargaining will occur include meat packing, paper, primary steel, automobile, electrical products, construction and retail food stores.

Economic Setting

Collective bargaining in 1984 will start within the context of a continuing slow recovery from the 1981 recession. Gross provincial product, industrial production and personal expenditure are up; and plant capacity utilization rate has risen to 68.1 percent. Interest rates have dropped from recent record levels but remain high. Inflation fell to a 4.2 percent annual rate in November from 9.8 percent in 1982 and 12.6 percent in 1981; and Ontario's seasonally-adjusted unemployment rate declined to 9.1 percent in November from 12.3 percent in 1982.

Continuing low inflation is forecast for 1984, but high unemployment is expected into the late 1980's. These will combine to moderate wage demands and focus the attention of union negotiators on job security issues.

In the public sector, bargaining will be conducted within the framework of the Public Sector Prices and Compensation Act, 1983. The Act will restore collective bargaining in the public sector after a year of controls. However, by placing a 5 percent ceiling on transfer payments to publicly-funded institutions and on allocations for the provincial and local governments the Act limits the amount of wage increases public sector employees can gain in 1984.

Monthly Activity

March and September have the largest number of expirations in 1984, with more than 500 agreements scheduled for renewal in each of these months. In terms of employees, April is the heaviest month, with 148,607 employees covered by 498 expiring agreements. Other busy months are August, September and December, each with more than 100,000 employees involved. These six months together account for 70 percent of the total expirations and 80 percent of the total employees who will be bargaining.

Industry Activity

The heaviest bargaining in 1984 will occur in non-manufacturing industries. This sector accounts for 62 percent of the total expirations and 72 percent of the employees affected. More than half of the agreements and employees in this sector are in public services including urban transit, electric utilities, education, health care, social services, and provincial and municipal governments. The number of public service employees who will be bargaining in 1984 will eventually reach 450,000 when contracts expiring at the end of 1983, will come up for renewal again in 1984. Other important negotiations in the non-manufacturing sector will involve 101,000 construction employees, 47,000 employees in retail food stores represented mainly by the Food and Commercial Workers, and 6,000 employees in logging represented by the Carpenters. Seven of the construction agreements involved were recently settled in advance of their scheduled expiry date of April 30, 1984, but only two of these settlements have been ratified.

In the manufacturing sector, the dominant bargaining situation will involve 45,000 employees at General Motors and Ford Motor, represented by the Auto Workers. Agreements with Chrysler, covering 9,500 employees, were settled in September 1983 in advance of their scheduled expiry date in January 1984. Other key groups include 7,000 meat packing employees at Canada Packers, Burns Meats, Gainer and J.M. Schneider, represented mainly by the Food and Commercial Workers; 21,000 pulp and paper employees at Abitibi-Price and eleven other paper companies, represented largely by the Canadian Paperworkers; 26,000 employees in primary steel at Stelco and Algoma Steel, represented mainly by the United Steelworkers; and 11,500 employees in electrical equipment at Canadian General Electric, Westinghouse and Northern Telecom, represented chiefly by the United Electrical Workers and Communications and Electronics Workers.

Major Expirations

The following is a list of the 126 major agreements (those covering 1,000 employees or more) scheduled for renewal in 1984. These agreements cover 53 percent of the total number of employees who will be seeking new contract terms.

FOREWORD

This is the eighteenth annual report of the Ontario Ministry of Labour describing the extent of collective bargaining that is likely to take place in Ontario for renewal of agreements scheduled to expire in 1985.

The data in this report are derived from information available in the Ministry's Collective Agreements Library as of December 31, 1984, and identify all 1985 bargaining situations known to the Ministry at that date. They do not include situations that will result from recent and future certifications by the Ontario Labour Relations Board, and new agreements that were not yet signed when the data were completed.

The report consists of four tables. Part A of Table 1 shows the total number of all agreements expiring by industry and month of expiration; and Part B shows the number of employees who will be affected. Table 2 gives a distribution of the total expirations by industry and size of bargaining unit. Table 3 lists only those agreements covering 200 or more employees by month of expiration; and Table 4 lists them by industry.

Appendix 1 lists the major agreements (those covering 1,000 or more employees) expiring in 1985. Appendix 2 explains the SIC (Standard Industrial Classification), union and bargaining unit codes used in Tables 3 and 4.

The report was prepared in the Research and Analysis Unit, Industrial Relations Division, Ontario Ministry of Labour.

ONTARIO COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AGREEMENT EXPIRATIONS, 1985

Introduction

The 1985 collective bargaining calendar in Ontario will be much lighter than in 1984. About 2,566 agreements covering 396,129 employees are scheduled to expire in 1985 (see Tables 1A and 1B), compared with 3,997 agreements covering 820,260 employees in 1984. The smaller number of expirations in 1985 is due primarily to the absence of many public sector agreements that are currently being negotiated after coming out of one-year contracts under the federal and provincial wage restraint programmes.

The 1985 expirations represent 30 percent of the 8,630 agreements on file in the Ministry of Labour's Collective Agreements Library at December 31, 1984, and involve 29 percent of the 1,350,200 employees covered by the total file of agreements. Among industries in which major negotiations will take place in 1985 are corrugated containers, printing and publishing, primary metals, farm machinery, transportation equipment, electrical products, mining, pipeline construction, transportation, electric and gas utilities, education, health and government.

Economic Setting

Collective bargaining in 1985 will begin in an economic environment marked by a continuing slow recovery from the 1981 recession. The Gross Provincial Product increased 2.5 percent in the first half of 1984, but dropped 1.5 percent in the third quarter. Personal expenditure increased 2.1 percent in the first quarter, but declined 1.8 percent in the third quarter. Employment grew steadily during the year, increasing 3.7 percent in December over January's level. The unemployment rate dropped to 8.6 percent in June, from 9.1 to 9.4 percent in the first five months, but increased to 8.7 percent in December.

Industrial production in Canada increased 1.4 percent in the first half of the year, but dropped 2.3 percent in the third quarter. The plant capacity utilization rate increased steadily to 74.2 percent in September. The Consumer Price Index continued to drop through the year, reaching a 3.8 percent annual rate in December from 4.5 percent in 1983. Interest rates have decreased steadily since July from record high levels in the first half of 1984.

Inflation is predicted to continue to fall in 1985, but high unemployment is forecast into the late 1980's, and significant recovery is not expected in 1985. In these economic conditions, wage demands are expected to be modest, with greater emphasis placed by union negotiators on job security.

Monthly Activity

March and December have the largest number of expirations in 1985, with more than 300 agreements involved in each of these months. More than 200 agreements are affected in January, April, June and September. In terms of employees, August is the heaviest month, with 57,500 employees involved. Other busy months are March, June and December, each with more than 40,000 employees affected. July has the smallest number of agreements (99) and employees (10,990) involved in bargaining in 1985.

Industry Activity

The 1985 expirations divide almost equally between manufacturing and non-manufacturing industries, but non-manufacturing industries account for two-thirds of the employees affected. The principal negotiations in manufacturing will involve 2,830 employees in primary metals at Atlas Steel, Lake Ontario Steel and INCO; 2,700 in farm machinery at International Harvester and Massey-Ferguson; 12,400 in transportation equipment at Chrysler, National Steel Car and Budd Canada; and 5,200 in electrical products at Northern Telecom and Canadian General Electric.

In non-manufacturing, the principal negotiations will affect 11,380 employees in mining at INCO and Falconbridge; 4,370 in pipeline construction; 12,960 in transportation at Toronto Transit Commission, Air Canada and at member companies of the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau; 16,210 in communications at Bell Canada and Canadian Broadcasting Corp.; 16,980 in electric and gas utilities at Ontario Hydro, Consumers' Gas and Union Gas; and 141,350 in education, health and government.
